Executive Summary

Summarize the report in such a way that readers can rapidly become acquainted with the material without having to read it all. It will usually contain a brief statement of the topic covered, brief information about the background, concise analysis and main conclusions. Place the deliverable briefly within the overall Skills4Life project context and list the target group of the deliverable. The summary must be short and to the point, approximately one page.

The Executive Summary shall not be a neutral overview (abstract) for people who shall decide whether or not to read the main document, but a document in miniature that may be read instead of the full deliverable. It should be written in the same order as the main document and only include material presented in the deliverable. It should have a conclusion and make recommendations.

1. Introduction
